School Nursing: A Comprehensive Text, awarded the AJN 2006 Book of the Year award in three categories!

Philadelphia, PA – Announced in the January 2007 issue of the American Journal of Nursing (AJN), editor Janice Selekmán received the AJN 2006 Book of the Year award in the categories of Advanced Practice Nursing, Maternal-Child Nursing and Childbirth, and Nursing Education and Continuing Education.

Receiving the award in three categories is a unique and special achievement. Not only because School Nursing: A Comprehensive Text is a first edition work, but it's also the only book of its kind officially recognized and endorsed by the NASN (National Association of School Nurses).

Since 1969, the American Journal of Nursing has been publishing an annual list of the best in nursing publishing. Published in the January issue of the journal, the AJN Book of the Year program is a prestigious competition that garners the attention of its 342,000 readers, as well as librarians and faculty who are not subscribers. The most valuable texts of each year are chosen by AJN's panel of judges.

The judges noted that, "considering such concerns as violence in schools, [School Nursing] is likely to have an impact on the work of schools." They further cited School Nursing is a "well-organized reference [that] addresses the roles and functions of the school nurse, legal concerns, the well child, episodic illness, chronic conditions, high-risk behaviors, and health services management."
